International Year One in Law

Empower your legal aspirations with the NCUK International Year One in Law.

Are you seeking the perfect academic pathway to studying Law at university? The NCUK International Year One in Law is a comprehensive qualification tailored for students who aspire to pursue a degree in law and gives you the opportunity to study the first year of an undergraduate degree at an NCUK Study Centre, locally or in the UK, and progress directly into Year 2 of a degree at university.

How does it work?

The International Year One in Law consists of 1200 hours of study in total (600 guided learning hours, 600 independent study). You will study a diverse set of 5 compulsory modules including:

Contract Law

Criminal Law

Public Law

English System &
Legal Research Skills

Tort Law

Whilst studying the International Year One in Law, you will also take our English for Academic Purposes (EAP) module, which provides essential language preparation for university study. NCUK's EAP is equivalent to IELTS and is acceptable for visa requirements. The assessment breakdown is generally 50% coursework and 50% exam.

Where can I progress to?

By completing the International Year in Law you will be able to progress to one of a range of six NCUK University Partners across the UK where you will have several degree courses to choose from, including popular options such as Law, Business Law, Law with Criminology, Law with Finance and more!

Entry Requirements

To begin studying the International Year One in Law, you must have achieved at least an NCUK EAP 'C' grade or hold an acceptable equivalent alternative English language qualification and have obtained a minimum of 48 NCUK foundation points with a C in at least 2 subjects following study of the NCUK International Foundation Year. Full entry requirements with alternative entry requirements can be found on the NCUK website.
